

Team building activities can help our youth learn about teamwork, cooperation and communication. Among Boy Scouts, these are particularly valuable skills. Team building activities are different than regular activities. These activities cannot be completed without the entire team working together. The facilitator will assist the teams in creating plans, executing tasks allowing them to work together or think about working together, and every activity ends with a debrief. During the debriefing, the facilitator will ask probing questions and elicit responses about the activity and talk about how they can continue to improve with each task.

How can this help my Boy Scout troop?

Regardless of age the versatile activities work well with newly-formed or well-acquainted groups. Such activities teach boys basic cooperative, interpersonal and social skills that have positive effects far beyond the game or the group. There are also numerous badge work opportunities. So get your Boy Scouts together and bring them out to Dagaz Acres Leadership Center for a day of fun and learning they will never forget!
